It is estimated that 10-20% of the population suffer from Irritable Bowel Syndrome (IBS). Symptoms include abdominal pain, bloating, flatulence, irregular bowel habits, and alternating diarrhoea/constipation. IBS is Linked to imbalances in the gut microflora, stress, low fibre diets, high caffeine intake and food intolerance. A clinical Study using a combination of L.plantarum and L.acidophilus found that 55.6% of IBS patients experienced a reduction in their symptoms, including abdominal pain and discomfort, bloating, and alternations in bowel functions. In contrast only 8% of the patient group given a placebo experienced a similar reduction in their symptoms.
